ALMOST AN ULTIMATUM.

Uncle Sam Once More Duns the Turk For the Indemnity.

Note Said in Washington to be as Strong as it Could be Without Being the Last Word.

WASHINGTON, May 23—Beyond the statement that the United States is persistently prosecuting the shameful claims against the Turkish government the officials of the state department decline to indicate the character of the last instructions sent to Chargé Griscom in relation to these claims.

It is generally understood that the Constantinople dispatch materially sets forth the character of the communication. It is certainly not an ultimatum, but is believed to be as strong in its representations as a diplomatic note could be made without actually becoming an ultimatum.

It is probable that before taking the step, the dispatch of an ultimatum, the president might call upon congress, the executive of the nation, for advice as to what is to be done, so as to insure full support in the execution of any policy which he may feel called upon to adopt.

The fact that this last note to Mr Griscom was called the very day that Ahmed Pasha landed in New York, especially clothed with some mission in connection with the Armenian question, has given rise to a belief here that the U S government will not give its sanction to any such compromise of the claims as has been suggested.

The government, as the insurance of the claimants, having undertaken to collect the claims, it is believed will certainly be consulted before it consents their withdrawal, so that any effort to arrange for a settlement directly between the claimants and the Turkish representatives, under cover of the purchase of a warship, or otherwise, will be met with the statement that the matter of public record, if permitted at all.

If this is done, it is hard to perceive what advantage is to accrue to the Turkish government from such a roundabout method of settlement, which after all would probably become known to all of the European creditors of the government.

UNCLE SAM DUNS AGAIN.

Great Impression Produced by Chargé Griscom's Last Note on the Turkish Indemnity Claims.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Tuesday, May 22—The U S legation having vainly waited four weeks for a reply to the note of April 24 regarding the American indemnity claims, Lloyd C. Griscom, U S chargé d'affaires, yesterday handed to Tewfik Pasha, minister of foreign affairs, a note reiterating the demands of the United States and insisting upon a prompt settlement.

The note produced a great impression, as the porte thought the matter postponed. It not withdrawn or settled, that the United States will, as a last resort, send the fleet for an answer. America's indulgence thus far having made a satisfactory impression upon the porte.

Pres Faunce Says That He Has Been Disgraced.

PROVIDENCE, May 23—There has been little rest in the past 36 hours for the members of the freshman class of Brown university. They have lived in an atmosphere of daring deeds.

Yesterday the sophomores certain members of the class were following up by bold sophomores last night, and as a result attempt to stop the freshmen's class banquet.

Today Prex W. H. P. Faunce of the college administered a rebuke to the sophomores in marching across the campus and had disgraced the college.

The freshmen appointed committees of their banquet committee this forenoon from a cutout down the bay, with the accessories of a tug and a crew of longshoremen. Tonight they held their banquet in spite of their enemies of the sophomore class, and without further disturbance.

The fights of last night, when the kidnapping took place, were as nothing compared with the great rumpus today, when the pirate craft of the sophomores on which were two freshmen, bound and gagged, was overhauled by the crew of the tug Hall, off Bristol. Hall's dozen large longshoremen assisted in the capture.

When they were shipped for the voyage in the darkness just preceding dawn this morning they were ready to a mere performance of a story duty. They were told that the tug would have no mercy on the pirate crew of kidnappers.

"Leave us have our own way," said they, "and we'll break their backs, every mother's son of them, if that is what you would have."

They did not, of course, do anything of the kind, but they were not wanted by the freshmen. They simply wanted to secure the persons of William H. Hart of Concord, Mass, and

WASHINGTON, May 23—This was a day of raging political controversy and oratory from the senate.

With the controversy those on the democratic side of the chamber, announced that they would not vote on the Platt resolution, which, in its present form, is regarded as likely to be the paramount issue of the approaching national campaign, was the subject of two notable speeches, one by Mr Hale of Maine and the other by Mr Spooner of Wisconsin.

The former was on answer to the speech delivered a few days ago by Mr Bacon, of Georgia, on his resolution demanding an investigation of Spanish cruelties in Cuba. Mr Hale opposed the adoption of the resolution, but deprecated what he declared was an effort to make political capital out of the situation.

The speech of Mr Spooner was a continuation of his address of yesterday on the Philippine question. In its course he became involved in a heated and emotional colloquy with Mr Hale of Maine over the government's conduct of affairs in our "insular possessions."

"Leave us have our own way," said he, "and we'll break their backs, every mother's son of them, if that is what you would have."

They did not, of course, do anything of the kind, but they were not wanted by the freshmen. They simply wanted to secure the persons of William H. Hart of Concord, Mass, and Barnes-Pierce Attachment a Lively Topic of Gossip for Many Weeks at Newton's Home, Newton.

ATTAIN WISH.

Miss Pierce and Barnes Married Sunday.

Newburg Not So Hostile to Them as Was Newton.

Ceremony at Home of the Groom's Parents.

Closely Questioned About Ages by Minister.

Answered Without Trying to Conceal Disparity.

NEWBURG, N Y, May 23—Charles H. Barnes and Miss Louise Pierce of Newton were married in this city on Sunday, May 21, by Rev A. K. Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist church.

Mr Fuller noticed the disparity in the ages of the contracting parties, but they answered without any apparent attempt at concealment. Barnes said he was 24 years of age. Miss Pierce confessed to 21. Each claimed to have been married before.

The ceremony took place at the home of young Barnes' parents in this city, Mr Fuller and mother witnessing the marriage.

The objection of the latter, and the same spirit was entertained by some of Miss Pierce's friends, was the extreme disparity in the ages of the bride and groom, she being 21 years, and the latter Barnes' age was given as 24. She was indignant over the interference in her private affairs, maintained her ability to conduct and manage her own business and argued that "as young girls marry old men, old ladies should have a perfect right to marry young men; it is a poor rule that won't work both ways."

On May 1 assistant registrar Frank Osborne of Boston refused to grant a license for the marriage, after Mr Barnes and Miss Pierce had called twice that day, feeling that the woman did not look as old as she claimed to be.

On May 2 Miss Pierce was out to be found at her home and then the longings of the gossips wagged tirelessly about an elopement, but nothing definite could be learned. On May 8 the village of Newton Highlands was thrown into a state of excitement by the news that a pair of Mr Barnes to the Pierce home, which had to all appearances been closed since Tuesday, May 1.

Last week a Newton paper received a notice by mail, accompanied by $1 to cover charges of publishing, and announcing the marriage of Charles H. Barnes and Miss Louise Pierce of Newton Highlands, on Monday, May 21, but on return of the marriage had been made the same day in Newburg.

Mr Barnes, the bridal party went to Boston in connection with the reception of the marriage having taken Nieces at Funeral, to Townspeople's Surprise.

WILMINGTON, May 23—Followed by thousands of seekers after morbid excitement, who willingly tramped the weary mile from the house to the tomb, Mrs France B. Hiller was buried this afternoon in her two caskets which she had for years been waiting and ready for her.

The funeral passed off without a hitch in any arrangement. The two nieces, Mrs Hitchcock and Miss Matheson, rode in the first carriage immediately behind the hearse and entered it from the Hiller mansion. There was no recollection of sense of any kind, a state of affairs the spectators were not led to anticipate.

The catafalque was strong enough to carry the casket, and no mishaps were met in the handling of the mass of flowers. The procession left the house at the time fixed, and after the mass was sung at the church the body was taken to the tomb, the inner casket placed in the outer one, and the door of the tomb and that sealed up at once. The work had so far progressed at sundown tonight that no one was left on

Lord Roberts Near the Transvaal Frontier.

Boers Retiring to the Vaal.

Their Forces Rapidly Growing Smaller.

Engineers Say Pretoria Can Stand a Year's Siege.

Details Coming of the Relief of Mafcking.

Ambush of Bethune Fully as Bad as First Reported.

LONDON, May 24—4.40 a m—Lord Roberts is drawing near to the frontier of the Transvaal. His infantry masses are at Rhenoster river, 35 miles north of Rhenoster river. Some thousands of cavalry are already across the river.

Also Boers are retiring toward the Vaal, with their heavy baggage. They are reported from Pretoria as already across that river. Twenty thousand men and 14 guns, reinforcements from Natal and Boer positions, are with Prinsloo, Wessenging, at the Vaal, to Pretoria.

Foreign engineers assert that Pretoria is able to stand a year's siege.

According to advices from Lourenco Marques the Pretoria fortifications are described as extensive and admirable, having been constructed under German direction for defense. The Transvaal government papers and the war chest have been removed to Lydenburg.

Portuguese continue to leave the republic. The Boers at Pretoria treated the Delagoa Bay affair as reported—in Pretoria as useless to the fleeing Hollanders and passage to Europe.

The Boer forces continue to dwindle. Some of the correspondents assert that probably only about 16,000 of the burghers yet remain, although there are 25,000 names on various parts of the Transvaal.

One of the curious pieces of gossip sent from Lourenco Marquez is that several women tried to slambok Pres Kruger, who was rescued by his body guard. He rarely leaves the presidency, and then only surrounded by mounted escorts at daybreak and during the night. It was announced at Pretoria Sunday that the government proposed removing their prisoners from Pretoria.

Marching itineraries continue to pour in from London relating to the movements preceding the relief and the entry of the troops.

The correspondents agree that the Canadian artillery, Maj Hodgs's seven guns, rendered splendid service, and assert that the Canadians did "absolutely essential work in the fighting."

About 7 in the evening of the day before the relief, after Col Mahon and Col Plumer had defeated the Boers nine miles from Mafeking, Maj Karri Davies, with 300 mounted men, rode into town. The Boers were then retreating.

At 8 on the following morning, 100 men, including the Canadians, arrived. With them were 30 wagon loads of food, which were received with wild demonstration. The armored train and a squadron of Canadians left Mafeking for Commissioner Fort, 40 miles of the railway. The Boers had evacuated it on the night of the 16th, after having destroyed the water tanks.
